

Poetry Series

Robert N. Cantara
- poems -

Publication Date:

2014

Publisher:

Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Robert N. Cantara(04/21/1959)

Long Night Of The Moon

As the full moon of the yule rises
It's reign of long cold nights begin
Winters coat cast it's moons rays
As it blankets the cold earth

Winter's cold tightens it's grip
It's icy winds shake the bare trees
As their errie skelitons shiver
Their shadows dance upon the snow

Robert N. Cantara

Poet To Poet

You read my words, I read your words
I feel your thoughts, Your pains. Your worries
Do you feel my thoughts? My pains? My worries?
Your words called back the pains of my past
My words speak of my pains and fears of today
Will you feel my fears? My pains? My worries
Let our words speak of Our Fears, Our Pains, Our worries
May our words heal Our pains, Our fears, Our worries

Robert N. Cantara

The 2nd Floor

Shakened by an evil dream
Twin boys holding me down
I can't escape their clutches
Held down a pillow on my head
My screams go unheard
Then they are gone

My body shaken to its core
I run down the stairway
But I'm still on the second floor
Down stairway, again 2nd floor

I run into the bedroom
My girlfriend yelling at me
But she has no head
Up the stairway I run
Into my bed I jumped
A cold touch on my face
My dog's nose wakes me up
It's time for her walk
We walk as my body trembles

Robert N. Cantara